FRIDAY MORNING, NOV. 28, 1862.

Railroad Accident-A Smash Up. The morning passenger and express rain for Louisville met with a serious nishap yesterday, at the switch about one mile and a half from this city. It t with a stick. As the train was pass- on the 16th inst. ng over the switch, the fastening gave vay, and four passenger cars were itched down an embankment some thirtyeet high. The locomotive, ladies' car, witch were not thrown off. There were ern Georgia. ome four hundred passengers in the ars at the time, who almost miraculously scaped much serious injury. Lieuteant RAVENSCROFT of the 22d Indiana, vas found under a truck which was oroken from one of the cars. His legs Randolph. vere severely brused, but no bones broken. Its sword was broken to atoms.

A. Guning, discharged private of the 7th Indiana, had his right hand fracured, and was otherwise slightly bruisd. Nine others who were not seriously oruised were conveyed to the hospital, and were well attended to.

The furniture of the cars was totally vrecked, seats, stoves, etc., being knockd to pieces.

Conductor Sweeny behaved with great oolness, and exerted himself to the utnost in restoring order to the scene, which was for a while one of the wildest anfusion.

Some fifty yards of rails and cross-ties vere broken and scattered in all direcions. Singular to relate, the furniture of he cars which remained on the track vas as much damaged as in those which vere precipitated down the embankment. The train will leave as usual this design, regarde

Playing Government.

We have seen little girls amuse themselves by "playing house," and little boys often enjoy themselves by "playing soldier." These pastimes have quite as much dignity and reality in them, as the game of Government which the rebels are playing so soberly. Here is the way the fellows do it:

A correspondent of the Ohio State Journal says: "General Busnston, though born in Indiana, was a resident of Ohio, before his entrance at West Point, and it necessary to distinguish a soldier for little did that black-eyed, red-checked that where there is so much to censure board, at Lebanon, dream that the finest good and faithful soldiers of his comand best equipped army the world ever mand, all the consideration, respect and saw would follow him to battle, and that the mightiest interests of his country would be confided into his his hands for weal or svor!"

We are requested by the city Postmaster to state that letters dropped in Some dirty dog broke into the room of the Postoffice marked "Official Business," EGRGE, the colored pressman in our and without stamps, have to be sent to flice, night before last, and stole from the dead letter office, unless they are addressed to some one who is entitled to

A large number of letters, frequently as many as two thousand a week, are run him through the press a dozen sent from this office to the dead letter imes. We will make an impression upon office at Washington, for the want of stamps, or the endorsement of the Colonel or Major of the regiment. A great many soldiers think if their letters are marked "soldier's letters," that is all that is required. This is a great mistake. A large number of the old stamps are still used, and that too by business men who ought to know better. Letters | would it draw to itself the most invisible with the old stamps are sent to the dead particles by the mere power of attracletter office. The Postoffice in this city is always supplied with postage stamps, stamped letter envelopes, newspaper the day, and as the magnet finds iron, so wrappers, stamps for foreign letters, &c.
